CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background of the Problem

English is a language that is used by almost everyone. In Indonesia, English is the first foreign language and it's a compulsory subject that is learned in the school. Nowadays, not only as a foreign language but also taught from secondary up to university. Learning English aims for mastering four basic skill of language, which include listening, speaking, reading, and writing. In this section the writer focus on writing skill.

Writing is the ability to express one's ideas in written form is a second or foreign language (Marianne C. Murcia,1991). It means that writing is an activity to express our ideas in written form On the other side. Writing is not a natural skill because one cannot acquire this ability automatically and easily. To acquire writing ability the someone should get sufficient writing practices. These practices are supposed to stimulate the someone skill in writing and expressing thoughts in a good passage. Without practice, it is impossible to write well and effectively.

However, writing in English is not easy and the students often find some difficulties while they are writing. They get difficulty in making a choice of words and putting the words together. In writing, the choice of words depends on the purpose and the particular situation that are being used in creating the text.

Based on the curriculum of senior high school which recommended by the government, there are some texts which have to be mastered by the students at senior high school. One of the texts is descriptive text.

Descriptive text is to create a clear picture or impression of person, place or object Similar to Diane A. Willbur (1996). In addition, descriptive text is a text which describes something, someone, situation, and etc. In writing descriptive text the students should describe something, someone, or situation in written form or write about the way persons, places, or things appear.

In writing the descriptive text, students often find some difficulties. The students usually feel difficult to organize their ideas. Furthermore, many students get difficulties in writing a paragraph. Usually, they give an opinion in developing their ideas into the written language. It is difficult for students to arrange words into a sentence, sentences into a paragraph, paragraph into a composition in which the message understood and grammatically correct.

Based on the observation, the researcher found in SMAN 2 Kuok. There are some problems that faced by the students in learning English. Especially in writing class with the material is descriptive text. Most of students could not write descriptive text because of several reasons. First, some students still do not understand the definition and generic structure of descriptive text because the students did not pay attention to the teacher while the teacher explain about descriptive text. Second, the students get difficulties in writing descriptive text because they have limited background knowledge of grammar. Third, some students are lack of vocabularies and they also have difficulties in developing their ideas related to their topic.

Based on the facts, the researcher conclude that the students tenth grade of SMAN 2 Kuok face serious problems in constructing and arranging sentences as well. They were still have difficulties to making descriptive text and determine words to describe something.

Based on the case above, it is important to the researcher to conduct a research entitled:“An Analysis On Students’ Writing Skill Of Descriptive Text At Tenth Grade of SMAN 2 Kuok”.

CHAPTER II

REVIEW OF THE RELATED LITERATURES

A. Review of Related Theories

1. The Nature of Writing

There are many definitions of writing proposed by some experts. Generally, writing is the most difficult skill to be learnt. This opinion is supported by Jack C. Richards and Willy A. Renandya (2002), "Writing is the most difficult skill for second language learners to master". The difficulty is not only in generating and organizing ideas, but also in translating idea into readable text. There are many different definitions about writing given by experts from many resources.

According to Rise B. Axelrod and Charles R. Coopers (1985) state writing is a complex process and as such contains element of mystery and surprise. But we know and believe that writing is a skill that anyone can learn to manage".

Writing is the ability to express one's ideas in written form is a second or foreign language (Marianne C. Murcia 1991). It means that writing is an activity to express our ideas in written form. On the other side, Barnet and Stubb's (1983) said that writing as a physical act, it requires material and energy. And like most physical acts, to be performed fully, to bring pleasure, to both performer and audience, it requires practice”.

From definitions above, it can be said that writing can be distinguished from other skills as the most difficult one. There are many factors influencing writing to be a good one such as grammatical, vocabularies, punctuation, and spelling knowledge which must be integrated to be a paragraph.

From the ideas previously, the writer conclude that writing is more than a medium communication. It is a way of remembering and a way of thinking. Because of that, writing is not easy. It needs a hard work. In writing we have to produce words, phrase, sentences, and paragraph at the same time. It is a way of learning. None of us can write much of interest without first thinking, probing, observing, asking question, experimenting, and reading.

From the opinion above, writing is the way of thinking or sending message from the writer to the reader which becomes the part of language or language skill and it also means communication.

a. The writing process

Writing is a process that involves several steps. At least, there are three steps in the writing process mentioned by Karen Blanchard, and Christine Root (2003) in their book; Ready to Write: A first Composition Text.

1) Prewriting

Prewriting is the thinking, talking, reading, and writing we do about our topic before we write a first draft. Prewriting is a way of warming up our brain before we write, just as we warm up our body before we exercise. There are several ways to warm up before start writing:

a) Brainstorming

Brainstorming is a quick way to generate a lot of ideas on a subject. The purpose is to make a list of as many ideas as possible without worrying about how you will use them. To brainstorm, follow these steps

- (1) Begin with a broad topic.
- (2) Write down as many ideas about the topic as you can in five minutes.
- (3) Add more items to your list by answering the questions what, how, when, where, why, and who.
- (4) Group similar items on the list together.
- (5) Cross out items that do not belong.

2) Writing

After we have spent some time thinking about our topic and doing the necessary prewriting, we are ready for the next step in the writing process: writing our paragraph. When we write the first draft of our paragraph, use the ideas we generated from prewriting as a guide. As you write, remember to:

- a) Begin with a topic sentence that states the main idea.
- b) Include several sentences that support the main idea.
- c) Stick to the topic.
- d) Arrange the sentences so that the order of ideas makes sense.

3) Revising

It is almost impossible to write a perfect paragraph on the first try. The first try is called the first draft. After you complete the first draft, you must look for ways to improve it. This step is called revising. When students revise, they review their text on the basis of the feedback given in the previous stage. They reexamine what was written to see how effectively they have communicated their meanings to the reader. In another source stated that writing is a process that involves the following steps:

- a) Discovering a point—often through prewriting.
- b) Developing solid support for the point—often through more prewriting.
- c) Organizing the supporting material and writing it out in a first draft.

d) Revising and then editing carefully to ensure an effective, error-free paper.

b. The purpose of writing

According to Penny Ur (1996) “the purpose of writing, in principle, is the expression of ideas, the conveying of messages to the reader. So the ideas themselves should arguably be seen as the most important aspect in the writing”. It means that when the writers do their writing, of course they have some purposes. They have to consider the purpose of their writing since this will influence, not only the type of text they wish to produce, but including the language which they use, and the information that they choose.

In addition, there are really only four common purposes in writing they are: to inform, to explain, to persuade, and to amuse others.

1) Writing to Inform

In much of the writing that the writers will do, they will intend simply to inform their readers about a subject. To inform is to transmit necessary information about the subject to the readers, and usually this means just telling the readers what the facts are or what happened. Although informative writing is the simplest kind of writing, it is also one of the most important, because information lays a foundation for other writing purposes. As the writers write to inform, they will want to keep two large concerns in mind; selecting the right information and arranging it effectively.

2) Writing to Explain

Writing to explain means writing to take what is unclear and make it clear. In explanatory writing, a writer who understands a complex topic must take care that his readers understand it as well. All of us use several common methods of explaining something to another person in our everyday conversation, and these same techniques can provide basic strategies for organizing an explanation in writing.

3) Writing to Persuade

The most important writing we ever do in our personal life, our work life, and may be our school life will probably be persuasion. Complaints to the rent board about our landlord, letters of application for jobs, essays on examinations are all likely to involve writing persuasively. Your task in persuasion is to convince your readers to accept the main idea, even though it may be controversial.

4) Writing to Amuse Others

Writing to amuse requires that you focus on readers other than yourself. You may enjoy the experience and take pride in what you accomplish, but you cannot settle for amusing yourself alone.

Writing to amuse gives you an opportunity to bring pleasure to others. Seize the opportunity and make the most of it. If you find pleasure in writing to amuse, it will come from knowing that you succeed in bringing pleasure to others. When write to amuse, your primary object is to make readers enjoy themselves. You can be funny, but you should also be goodhumored. This means having sympathy for human frailty rather than a contempt for anyone or anything that seems different from what you are accustomed to.

c. Writing Assessment

The following is about the writing assessment. That assessment will be run during having this research. It comes from Cohen in Richard (1998:89). Cohen separates the writing rubrics into five component of writing skill that can be defined as follow:

- 1). Content : content that relates to the ideas of the students' in writing.
- 2). Organization : that concerns in how the students manage the ideas in writing.
- 3). Vocabulary : asserted, It focuses on how students elect the exact words in writing.
- 4). grammar : that relates to the sentences' arrangement.
- 5). Mechanisms : that intended in spelling and punctuation.

This is considered appropriate to assess the students' writing. It is driven by the completeness of the rubrics that asserted by Cohen. In writing also needs some points that should be seriously noticed by the teacher such as content, organization, vocabulary, grammar and mechanisms.

2. Descriptive Text

a. Definition of Descriptive Text

Artono Wardiman (2008) in Alawi (2011) Descriptive text is a part of factual genres. Its social function is to describe a particular person, place or thing. Wyrick (1987:227) states, "The writer of description creates a word-picture of persons, places, objects, and emotions using a careful selection of detail to make an impression on the reader." Description in writing is the process of creating visual images and sensory impression through words. More often, description is a part of another piece of writing and is used to inform an audience about how something or someone looked or to persuade an audience to see something from the writer's point of view.

Description recreates sense impression by translating into words, the feel, sound, taste, smell, and look of things. Emotion may be describing too, feelings such as happiness, fear, loneliness, gloom, and joy. Description helps the reader, through his or her imagination, to visualize a scene or a person, or to understand a sensation or an emotion. As Barbara Fine Clouse (2004) said in her book, The Student Writer, "Description adds an important dimension to our lives because it moves our emotion and expands our experience". Description expands our experience by taking us to place we might not otherwise know much about, which explains the popularity of descriptive travel essay in magazines and newspapers. Traditionally, descriptions are divided into two categories: objective and subjective.

In objective description you record details without making any personal evaluation or reaction. In subjective description, you are free to interpret the details for your reader; your reaction and description can be emotional and value-loaded. The goal when we write subjective description is to create vivid mental images. To do that, we will use concrete sensory detail, which consists of specific words that appeal to the sense (sight, sound, taste, smell, touch). Whether objective or subjective, descriptions can serve a variety of purposes, but in every case it is important to make that purpose clear to your reader.

From definition by experts. The researcher concludes that Descriptive text is a text that describes the features of someone, something, or a certain place. Descriptive text consists of introduction and description. Introduction is the part of paragraph that introduces the character, and description is the part of paragraph that describes the character.

b. Purposes of descriptive text

The purpose of descriptive text is to create a vivid impression of a person, place, object, or event. The writer uses description to persuade others to think or act in particular ways. As the examples in the following chart show, description enables us to entertain, express feelings, relate experience, inform, and persuade.

Table 2.1
Purpose for Description by Barbara Fine Clause(2003)

Purpose	Description
To entertain	An amusing description of a teenager's bedroom.
To express feelings	A description of your favorite Outdoor retreat so your reader understands why you enjoy it so much.
To relate experience	A description of your childhood home to convey a sense of the poverty you grew up in.
To inform (for a reader unfamiliar with the subject)	A description of a newborn calf for a reader who has never seen one,
To inform (to create a fresh appreciation for the familiar)	A description of an apple to help the reader rediscover the joys of this simple fruit.
To persuade (to convince the reader that some music videos degrade women)	A description of a degrading music video.

Although it can serve a variety of purposes, description is most often expressive, so it most often helps writers share their perceptions. As human beings, we have a compelling desire to connect with other people by sharing our experiences with them.

c. Kinds of descriptive text

As we know that descriptive text is a text to describe something, such as persons, places, or things. So, it normally takes on three forms, they are:

1) Description of a person

Every person is unique, and therefore they are also different. In describing someone, sometime you may ask “how or what’s look like?”. There three different ways to describing someone depend on the situation: identification, impression, and character sketch.

a) Identification

Although you might provide identification, you would probably want to go further than that. Used mainly in official records and documents, identification consists only of certain statistical information (height, weight, age), visible characteristics (color of hair, skin, and eyes), and recognizable marks (scars, birthmark).

b) Impression

Unlike the identification, the impression may not identify a person, but it does convey an overall idea of him or her. Many details may be missing, yet the writer does provide in a few broad strokes a general feeling about the subject. Although impression is usually less complete and informative than identification, it may be more effective in capturing an individual's striking or distinctive traits.

c) Character Sketch

More complete descriptions of people are usually called character sketch; they may also be referred to as profiles, literary portraits, and biographical sketches. As its name indicates, a character sketch delineates the character of a person, or at least his or her main personality traits. In the process, it may include identification and an impression, but it will do more than tell what people look or seem like: it will show what they are like. A character sketch may be about a type rather than an individual, revealing the characteristics common to the members of a group, such as campus jocks, cheerleaders, art students, religious fanatics, television devotees.

2) Description of a Place

In describing a place for example a room, what should you describe first? The walls? The Floor? Unlike a chronologically developed paragraph, there is no set pattern for arranging sentences in descriptive paragraph. It is not necessary to begin with one area and then proceed to another one. Nevertheless, the sentences should not be randomly arranged.

The description must be organized so that the reader can vividly imagine the scene being described. To make the paragraph more interesting, you can add a controlling idea that states an attitude or impression about the place being described. And the arrangement of the details in your description depend on your subject and purpose.

3) Description of a Things

To describe a thing the writer must have a good imagination about that thing that will be describe. Besides, to make our subjects as interesting and as vivid to our readers as they are to us: using proper nouns and effective verbs.

a) Using Proper Noun

In addition to filling our descriptive writing with concrete details and figures of speech, we might also want to include a number of proper nouns, which, as we know, are the names of particular persons, places, and things. For example; Arizona, University of Tennessee. Including proper nouns that readers recognize easily can make what we are describing more familiar to them.

b) Using Effective Verb

We know how important verbs are to narration, but effective verbs can also add much to a piece of description. Writers use verbs to make descriptions more specific, accurate, and interesting. For instance, “the wind had chiseled deep grooves into the sides of the cliffs” is more specific than “the wind had made deep grooves.” The verb chiseled also gives the reader a more accurate picture of the wind’s action than made does.

d. The Structure and Example of Descriptive Text

1) The generic structures of a description are as follows:

- a) Identification : identifies the phenomenon to be described
- b) Description of features

This stage contains important features description, such as physical appearance, qualities, and other characteristics from things that the writer describes.

c) The generic features of description are:

- (1) Verb in the present tense

In descriptive text, the writer should use present tense as verb.

(2) Adjective

Adjective also important in descriptive text, because it use describe the features of the subject

(3) Topic sentences

It use to begin paragraphs and organize the various aspects of the description.

2) The factual description scaffold

a) A general opening statement in the first paragraph

This statement introduces the subject of the description to the audience. It can give the audience brief details about the when, where, who, or what of the subject.

The first one is the research that had been done by Adi Purnomo with his research paper entitled "Improving Descriptive Writing Skill Through Mind-Mapping Technique". In his research, he found the psychological factors of the students. They are motivation and interest. To improve motivation and interest of the students, she uses mind mapping to solve the problem and increase students' achievement.

The second study had been done by Muhammad Bagus Nawawi, the purpose of his research project is to find out students English achievement on writing skill of descriptive text using Guided Questions method in the classroom. He chooses classroom action research, entitled “Improving Students’ Writing Skill of Descriptive Text through Guided Questions” ( Classroom Action Research at SMP PGRI 1 Ciputat –Kota Tangerang Selatan in the Academic Year of 2010/2011).

2. Location of the Research

Location of the research is at the tenth grade of SMAN 2 Kuok on Jl. Al- iman Kuok, Kampar Regerency.

B. Method of the Research

This reasearch is Descriptive method. According to Nazir (1988:63) said that Descriptive methode is a methode in resarching the status of a group human, an object, a set of conditions, a system of thought or a class of events in the present. The purpose of this descriptive study was to create a description, picture, or painting in a systematic, factual and accrate information on the facts, properties and relationship among phenomena investigated.

Sugiono (2005:21) says that descriptive research is a research used describe or analyze the result of the study but not used to make broader conclusions. This method is conted to determine the value of an independent variable, either one or more variables (independen) without making comparisons, or connect with other variable.

Based on the experts above, it can be concluded that descriptive reasearch is a research method whih systematically describe the fact and characteristics of the object and subject under study accurately where the writer tries to analyze. In this research, the researcher will describe the students' writing skill of descriptive text at tenth grade of SMAN 2 Kuok.

C. Population and Sample of the Research

1. Population

The population of this research is the tenth grade students of SMAN 2 Kuok. It consist of 2 classes and the total number of students 42 students. 20 students from class X<sup>1</sup> and 22 students from class X<sup>2</sup>. The population of the research can be seen as follows:

Table 3.2

The Population of The Tenth Grade Students of SMAN 2 Kuok

No	Class	Population
		Male	Femele	Total
1	X <sup>1</sup>	9	11	20
2	X <sup>2</sup>	12	10	22
Total		21	21	42

2. Sample

The sample is part of population that is expected to represent the population in the study. Kumar (1996:148) explains sampling is the process of selecting few from bigger group to become the basis for estimating or predicting a fact, situation or outcome regarding the bigger group. Therefore, from the population of SMAN 2 Kuok which consist of 44 students, the writer use cluster random sampling technique. Cluster random sampling technique selecting sample randomly by individuals. In this case,  $X^1$  was selected as sample of this research which consist 20 students.
